OUR STORY

Pocketbook Hudson is a place to be. We are not just a hotel destination, but a living, breathing place for care, creativity, and transformation. Here, you'll find beds for sleeping, a communal bathhouse, an open-fire restaurant, café and bar, a subterranean nightclub, galleries, and a street-level market. You'll also find original architectural details that speak to the present in unexpected ways.

We are housed in a historic textile factory built in 1885, which was last used in the 1970s to make pocketbooks and other novelty items, hence the source of our namesake. Restored by a group of artists, hoteliers, and historic developers, Pocketbook is a thoughtful project infused with art, design, and culture in every corner – we are a space for creative connection, and following your own paths.

During your stay and celebration at Pocketbook, you'll have the chance to explore these layered histories and our vibrant community. Within just two square miles, Hudson offers the rare walkable city filled with historic architecture, a dynamic cultural landscape with a lively mix of food, shopping, and more.

Set in the cultural heart of the Hudson Valley, we are ideally located for an easy journey: 2 hours from Manhattan by Amtrak and 2.5 hours by car from either NYC or Boston.

CELEBRATING WITH US

Weddings and committment celebrations unfold seamlessly across the hotel, with a multitude of spaces in which to gather with loved ones. With on-site accommodations, destination dining, bathing and spa amenities, each moment is designed to feel connected, effortless, and entirely personal.
